On Fire for Ministry!

2 Youth, Do You Dare?

3 Medical Missionaries Needed Now!

6 “My Carotid Arteries Are Clean!”
“YDYD made me realize that God is really calling me to be one of His soldiers, and I must answer the call,” states Sunni, who recently attended our “Soldiers of Christ” rally sponsored by Youth, Do You Dare?

Youth, Do You Dare? (YDYD) is a movement designed to answer this inspired challenge: “With such an army of workers as our youth, rightly trained, might furnish, how soon the message of a crucified, risen, and soon-coming Saviour might be carried to the whole world!”

Our aim is to train young people to become actual soldiers for Christ, doing practical gospel work. For what is a soldier without experience, training, or a mission? So we prepared for our youth rally, “Soldiers of Christ,” which would take place on April 30, 2011. That Sabbath, about 40 young people arrived for YDYD!

God provided a powerful speaker, John Baxter, who recruits, trains, and mobilizes missionaries for Adventist Frontier Missions. Brother Baxter spoke about how to become a Christian missionary and soldier. We concluded that a soldier of Christ is one who—falling at Jesus’ feet—surrenders fully to Christ, and then puts on the whole armor of God. Only then is one truly fit for the Savior’s service.

The youth also enjoyed gathering together in prayer groups, and spending time in nature where they could learn to meditate and commune with God through His creation. It was very simple, yet impacting and refreshing to the souls of the “soldiers.” All the youth who attended were tremendously inspired by the rally.

“I enjoyed the bonfire, the mission reports, and meeting and talking to dedicated young people,” Sunni shares.

“YDYD showed me that I can make a difference, even in the small aspects of my life,” relates Bonni. “I want to be trained to do canvassing and medical missionary work.”

“YDYD revived my faith!” Rochelle exults.

It is so thrilling and satisfying to see young people pressing forward as God’s soldiers, longing to honor their Commander in Chief—Jesus Christ.

Many youth today desire a calling in life, a purpose, and an adventure. But they don’t realize that these things are only found in love and service for Christ. YDYD is pushing hard to give our youth opportunities to receive that elevating training they need in order to carry God’s gospel to the whole world.

Will you pray for us? Will you tell other young people about this movement? Let us all as soldiers of Christ press forward as one and spread the good news of salvation so Jesus can come!

We can’t wait to see you at our next youth rally!

“...I will go home and share with my husband and church what I learned about medical ministry,” vows Gabriel. It is this work that will prepare the way for the proclamation of the third angel’s message. Soon doors now open will be closed. Short medical missionary training classes are needed. In May, Hartland’s Lifestyle Education Center (LEC) conducted a practical, hands-on medical missionary training session. Eight participants prepared themselves to follow in the Savior’s footsteps in ministering to the sick and downcast of society.

The participants came from various walks of life, showing that all are called to do medical missionary work. In just four days, they gained knowledge and skills that will aid them to helping their fellow man. The training was intense, but practical.

God had opened the door for each one to receive training. But He needs more workers. The training must go forward. Is God calling you to join the next session? Are you willing to increase your abilities that you might save some?

“I’m so pleased, so thrilled about the wealth of knowledge I’ve gained here. Before this program, I didn’t have hands-on experience,” relates Gloria Kathy. “I want to make my home a medical missionary home. I plan to turn it into a health ministry center for my family, my friends, and those I meet. There are people dying due to lack of knowledge. We have this knowledge—we must impart it to others.”

We know that obtaining knowledge and hands-on experience in meal preparation, massage, hydrotherapy, and other simple remedies will go far in meeting the physical needs of others. While we cannot teach everything in four days, we can lay a good foundation for medical ministry.

“I’ve been so impressed with how much heart the people at Hartland put into this program for us,” commends Gloria Jean. “They gave us their all.”

As you acquire knowledge of the simple remedies, you will also develop friendships with like believers who are also being trained for the front lines in the cause of God.

“I’m grateful for everyone—the instructors, the students, the cooks,” shares Juanita. “I’m thankful for the things I’ve learned here, and for the spiritual atmosphere. I love those people.”

Christ spent most of His time healing, and we are Christ’s hands and feet in this suffering world. Therefore we encourage you to come and learn how to use your mind, heart, hands, and feet to do medical missionary work. Make plans today to sign up for next year’s training session!

On June 3-4, four Hartland College graduates from two continents were launched into their life-calling. Before family, friends, staff, and students, the graduates shared inspiring testimonies about how the Lord led and protected them during their internships. Saturday evening, President Norbert Restrepo Jr. challenged each one of them to fulfill their God-given mission—to proclaim to this world the message of our soon-coming Saviour. The program concluded when President Emeritus Colin D. Standish prayed for God’s blessing on all four of the graduates.

Preparing young people to take the everlasting gospel to the world through evangelistic, educational, health, and media ministries.
In February 2010, Steve Bland dodged death from cardiovascular disease. How? He attended the 18-day health session at Hartland’s Lifestyle Education Center (LEC). One year later, Steve shares the thrilling results of participating in our lifestyle program.

May 10, 2011

Dear Sirs,

I just wanted to share my excellent news with you all.

Following a cerebral stroke in October 2009, I had a test called an ultrasound of my carotid arteries, and as you can see by the report dated December 2009, the test showed that my carotid arteries were 50% blocked with plaque.

I then came to your Lifestyle Education Center for an education into the best lifestyle for good health so I was with you for three weeks in February 2010.

Ever since February 2010 I have been on the same diet and exercise program that I learned at Hartland.

The result, as you can read by the photocopy of the radiologist’s report dated April 2011, is that my carotid arteries no longer have any significant plaque in them.

This proves that your program works to clean out clogged arteries.

So naturally I am pleased to share my good news with you all.

God bless you in your good work.

The reconstruction project is still in its first phase—building the framework for the classrooms and the stairwell, and installing new windows,” relates Devon Blackwood, Hartland’s maintenance director. “Also, the rafters for both ends of the roof are being repaired.”

In 2007, the Hartland Lifestyle Center came down with a serious mold problem. The building needed to be evacuated, and its equipment and furniture had to be put in shipping containers.

The mold was removed, but efforts to renovate the facility were placed on hold due to lack of funds. Up to this day, the building has not been used for anything. In 2009, the former ladies’ dormitory, located behind Hartland Institute’s main building, officially became the Lifestyle Education Center (LEC).

This year, Hartland Institute has moved forward in faith to resume the renovation of the old Hartland Lifestyle Center.

The first reconstruction phase cost the institution $58,000. The LEC had allocated $50,000 towards the renovation. During Hartland’s 2011 spring convocation, our guests cheerfully gave another $5,000 towards the project.

A few days later, a generous donor learned about the LEC’s $50,000 allocation, and matched it! “I broke out in tears,” shares LEC Director María Gligor. “I was so happy to see God’s hand in this process.”

When the renovation is complete, the former Hartland Lifestyle Center will become a health and education facility. It will consist of a lifestyle center, college classrooms, and college offices. Hartland Institute will be better equipped to train missionaries and minister to the sick and suffering.

“The second reconstruction phase will deal with the ventilation, heating, and air conditioning,” Devon Blackwood states.

It is your prayers and financial support that make projects such as this one become reality. We trust more of the Lord’s entrusted means will be channeled through His stewards to bring this project to completion. We invite you to open your hearts to receive and share His blessings.
Recently it has come to our attention that some impostors are calling themselves Dr. Colin Standish with the intent of soliciting donations for their ministries, which in actual fact are personal needs or wants. They are doing this by sending out false e-mail messages.

We know of one scheme that operates out of Kenya in East Africa. Someone impersonates Dr. Standish and states that Hartland Institute is starting a school of evangelism in Kenya, and would welcome monetary support for the project.

Other variant scams consist of bogus personal pleas to help individuals who are facing challenges in their respective ministries.

Please understand that e-mail messages from Dr. Standish only come from cstandish@hartland.edu, since Dr. Standish does not have any other e-mail address. Neither is he a member of Facebook or any other social network as some would have you believe.

If you have any questions regarding this issue, feel free to forward us a copy of the solicitation in question. You may direct these matters to Dr. Standish’s secretary, Alena, at (540) 672-1996 ext. 231 or awehr@hartland.edu.
On Fire for Ministry!

“I’ve developed the fire of reaching out and ministering to Christ-purchased souls.”

“I believe that getting to know the health guests, praying with them, and showing you really care about them, all play a part in their physical and spiritual recovery,” shares Juliet Tano, who will graduate from Hartland College on November 5. “I witnessed miracles in the lives of sick people.”

Juliet spent the first 10 weeks of her 30-week college internship at Hartland’s Lifestyle Education Center (LEC). “I learned the importance of healthful food presentations, especially for those who are not vegetarian. I took part in the cooking classes and prepared lunch for the LEC guests. Also, giving massages and hydrotherapy treatments enabled me to use the knowledge and skills I acquired when taking Hartland’s health classes.”

The second 10 weeks of Juliet’s internship took place at the NEWSTART Lifestyle Center in Weimar, California. “I freely listened to the doctors’ health lectures, sat in on exercise and nutrition counseling, and watched how treadmills are used to test the capacity of the patient’s heart during workouts. I also had lots of fun learning new baking skills.”

Juliet finished her internship at Fundacion Las Delicias in Venezuela. “In their lifestyle center’s kitchen I prepared teas, vegetable juices, and vegetable salads appropriate for each health concern. The use of natural remedies here is more aggressive—extremely helpful to all who come.”

Her greatest experience at each place has been “seeing the guests change their outlook on life. I know that God’s hand led me to every one of my internship sites.”

After she graduates, Juliet plans to be a medical missionary in her home country. “I want to be the Lord’s instrument in starting a health work in the Philippines. I want to be very aggressive—in a good way. The people need to be educated in healthy living and brought to the knowledge of Him who created all things.”

Concerning her college education, Juliet testifies, “Studying at Hartland made me strong in my moral and spiritual judgment—to value a plain ‘thus saith the Lord’ instead of what men think or feel comfortable doing. I’ve gained a thorough knowledge and training in Bible, health, and practical arts in a place where the focus is to serve God and to help a person strengthen their relationship with Him. Now I realize the depth of fulfillment and satisfaction in serving the King of kings—something money cannot buy.”

Juliet concludes, “Total dependence on God’s power has been emphasized in every stage of my training while doing real missionary work. His Spirit is definitely guiding me. I will continue to serve Him—walking by faith.”
On Sabbath, April 30, President Emeritus Colin D. Standish formally passed the torch of Hartland’s presidency to Norbert Restrepo Jr. Before 300 attendees Dr. Standish charged Brother Restrepo, “Do you vow to follow every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God? Do you vow to impartially lead God’s servants at Hartland Institute in ministry? Will you do all you can to hasten the second coming of Jesus Christ?”

Brother Restrepo answered, “By God’s grace and strength, and with the support and prayers of my fellow brethren, I commit to do so.”

The remarkable story of Hartland Institute was recapped through a narrated slide show, recognizing those who helped make Hartland’s vision become a reality.

Dr. Standish and his wife, Mrs. Cheryl Standish, were presented a plaque expressing appreciation for their 28 years of service. Those who worked with Dr. and Mrs. Standish during different eras of their ministry were also recognized during the slide show.

Dr. Standish encouraged Brother Restrepo’s children to support their parents in ministry, and to be a blessing to others on campus.

The Three Angels’ Chorale, Hartland’s touring choir, concluded the ceremony with the choral challenge “May the Lord Find Us Faithful.”
Obeying God’s Law
The perfect solution to global trouble

Humanity lives in hope of better times ahead. The masses expect their leaders to be able to achieve this goal for them. But humanity is remiss to understand that true happiness and fulfillment can only be found in a true knowledge of God. Today, in the post-modern era, society at large is moving towards global solutions to global problems. These solutions do not address the root problem.

This world’s root problem is sin. Though this answer might sound very simplistic, it is really most profound. The Bible calls sin “the transgression of the law” (1 John 3:4)—disobeying the principles of God’s character of self-sacrificing love.

God has entrusted His people with the true solution. It is not a mere theory or doctrine, but a practical reality that produces tangible results. These results will be a living testimony to God’s law being true and unchanging. Seventh-day Adventist Christians have the responsibility of manifesting in their lives how obeying God’s law solves the problems of humanity.

God originally placed man in a garden, with manual labor as the perfect economic model. He gave man an ideal diet for nourishment and enjoyment. He also provided for scientific development, instructing Adam to give names to all His creatures.

Finally, God made provision for man’s social needs.“It is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him an help meet for him.” Genesis 2:18. Thus God expressed the principle that man was not to live for himself, but for others.“…Whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant.” Matthew 20:27.

The Creator entrusted man with management, giving him opportunities to grow in true knowledge and then set the boundaries so that humanity would never fall into sin.

Yes, we have the true blueprint for earthly happiness—the law of God. The Bible and the Spirit of Prophecy provide the principles—the absolutes that apply to all circumstances of life. Let us embrace this instruction. Today we can experience the fulfillment of this promise!

“Keep therefore and do [God’s commandments]; for this is your wisdom and your understanding in the sight of the nations, which shall hear all these statutes, and say, Surely this great nation is a wise and understanding people.” Deuteronomy 4:6.

Hartland College Offers Exciting New Program: Certified Childbirth Education

Starting this fall, Hartland College is offering young ladies a program providing certification as Childbirth Educators (CE’s) or Doulas. CE’s, Doulas, and Midwives are trained professionals who offer care, education, counseling, and support to pregnant women. Today many women choose natural childbirth with Midwives or Doulas in settings such as hospitals, birthing centers, and private homes. This education will prove profitable, not only for the prospective CE, Doula, or Midwife, but also for anyone who eventually plans to marry and bear children. Those who successfully complete the first year will be certified as CE’s or Doulas. This certification is the prerequisite to the Midwifery course in the second year, which is designed to prepare the student to take the North American Registry of Midwives (NARM) exam. Passing the NARM exam is required to become a Certified Professional Midwife (CPM).
